FLOOR DEBATE

March 9, 2004

LB 906

how long I can speak. He didn't touch on that because he probably hadn't thought of it or wasn't aware of it. Why do you think you read articles about the marathon filibusters that occur in the U.S. Senate, where one person can take the floor and hold it all day, on and on and on? Do you know why those provisions are there and are allowed? To ensure discussion and the opportunity to debate. My colleague who put out his paper said that the majority will not always consist of the same individuals. There are shifting coalitions, if you want to call them that, or conglomerations of senators. But when you have a minority which is always going to be the minority and always the same, not group but person, then something else has to be put in to ensure the right of that person to be heard.

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: In addition, something my colleague failed to mention, the U.S. Senate is partisan. There are people and forces that can assist a minority on the floor in being heard. Not so where you have one house nonpartisan. If there were two houses, then, when you shut something off in one, the other can go on. There is no cloture rule that I'm aware of in the House of Representatives. Maybe there is, but I'm not aware of it. We talk about that in the U.S. Senate. So there is the opportunity for debate. What some of my lazy colleagues don't want to deal with is a person, such as myself, who is not going to stop talking just because they have some luncheon appointment or there's some other bill they want to get to that's of importance to them. I'm not going to go beyond my time, but I'm going to turn my light on again so that I can continue. Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. You've heard the opening on FA1552, offered by Senator Chambers to AM2963. Open for discussion. Senator Stuhr.

SENATOR STUHR: Thank you, Mr. President and members of the body. I did want to share with you a statement from Dr. John Ferguson, who is a dermatologist from Omaha. And he explained that there are a variety of problems he sees on a regular basis. Said it's not uncommon for people to have complications from
